Background

The United States Geological Survey and the Delta Stewardship Council are in the process of recruiting the next lead scientist for the Delta Science Program, whose term would begin in fall 2020. The Delta Stewardship Council appoints the Delta lead scientist after consultation with the Delta Independent Science Board (Delta ISB), pursuant to California Water Code section 85280(b). Four applicants are currently under consideration for the appointment. As part of the process, each applicant will give a brown bag seminar presentation on their research and experience, and how it applies to the position, as well as their vision for the Delta Science Program. The brown bag seminar presentations will be part of a public meeting and will be noticed individually. Information about the applicants and their seminars can be found on the Delta Lead Scientist web page: <https://deltacouncil.ca.gov/delta-science-program/delta-lead-scientist>.

Purpose

On March 12, 2020, the Delta lead scientist interview panel, an advisory committee to the Delta ISB, will hold a public meeting. Dr. Lisamarie Windham-Myers, an applicant for the Delta lead scientist position, will present a brown bag seminar, titled "From Measurements, Models and Maps to Management: Leveraging 25 years of Delta Biogeochemistry Research Across Scales." After the brown bag seminar, there will be an opportunity for the public to ask Dr. Windham-Myers questions on her presentation, and general questions related to the Delta lead scientist position during the meet and greet.

Following a break after the meet and greet, the Delta lead scientist interview panel will meet in closed session, pursuant to California Government Code section 11126(a)(1), to consider the matter of appointment of a Delta lead scientist and interview Dr. Windham-Myers. After the interview, the meeting will reconvene in open session and the interview panel will report out on the closed session.
